In a very real sense, Marriage and Couples therapy using ACT provides a skill training which allows for greater Awareness and Choice in the moment. Couples so easily can get swept along and pulled into patterns of connecting which can be very painful. They are often reactive and kneejerk and tend to be very habitual.

ACT in Marriage and Couples relationship therapy

An ACT / RFT Definition of Mindfulness The goal of ACT is an increase in psychological flexibility, that is, the ability to fully contact the present moment and the psychological reactions it produces as a conscious person and to persist or change in behavior in the situation in the service of chosen values. The ACT model is shown in Figure 1.
