This third edition of International Arbitration Law and Practice has been largely enriched by covering international commercial arbitrations, investment treaty arbitrations, arbitrations between public bodies, between states and individuals, the UNCITRAL model law and Iran-US Tribunal proceedings as well as commodity arbitration, online arbitration and sports arbitral proceedings. International Arbitration Law and Practice, 3rd edition elaborates new concepts such as a definition of international arbitration based on procedural law (different from transnational law) and a doctrine (the tronc commun doctrine) to identify the applicable substantive law on disputes between parties belonging to different countries. It further suggests that a law of international arbitration has arisen from the various conventions and laws. Besides dealing with all the aspects of arbitration on a topic by topic basis, the writer presents a third generation arbitration which builds on analysis of major obstacles to a smooth running arbitration. International Arbitration Law and Practice, 3rd edition is a work that anyone involved in arbitral proceedings will find to be absolutely indispensable.

For a long time, soft commodity arbitration has been portrayed as oversimplistic and possibly archaic. Critical observations have traditionally focused on non-legal adjudicators and non-legal party representatives struggling to apply English law to the international sale of soft commodities. Some of the key features of these arbitral proceedings - arbitral panels consisting mostly of traders, the limits on party representation by legal counsels in oral hearings and the non-reimbursement of legal costs unless both parties agree - have caused great dissatisfaction to those emphasizing international arbitration as an area exclusively for sophisticated first-class international lawyers. On the basis of current research in law and economics, this article suggests revisiting the restricted role of lawyers in soft commodity arbitration from the added value to trade perspective. Empirical studies showing the courts' limited possibilities of establishing trade usages and customs and theories of contractual formalism and minimalism can go some way towards explaining the phenomena of limiting lawyers' access to soft commodities arbitration.
