I was first alerted to the story of Eric Liddell through "Chariots of Fire" and again in Eric Metaxas "7 Men". The first half of Duncan Hamilton's "For the Glory" is a page turning journey of Liddell's quest to claim gold in the Paris Olympics and Duncan goes to great length to demonstrate how each step tempered Liddell to maximize his reach and scope as a missionary to China.

We give glory and feel theirs. There is a story of one Olympian, or one individual who excelled in his sport, who did not take glory for himself but rather ensured the Lord was the one being glorified, through sport and life. This is the story of Eric Liddell. Part of his story became famous from the movie Chariots of Fire.
