Rahab was a prostitute, a traitor to her own people, and an outsider. Even with those three strikes against her, God did not say, "You're out!". Rather, she received a place among God's people and is held up as an example of faith (Hebrews 11:31; James 2:25). Rahab had grown to recognize that the God of Israel was the Lord of heaven and earth. She trusted God and was willing to take risks to help his people.

Make that three "red days" in a row for the market. But is it a case of "three strikes" and you're out? No. Not even close. And whilst it's been more than a month since the major averages have dropped for three straight days – I would pay more attention if we see three (large) bearish weeks in a row... Day to day markets are all over the place.
